CD Review: FRANCOIS INGOLD TRIO/Song Garden: There are clearly a bunch of piano trios growing on the other side of the pond that we really need to take a closer look at. This bunch of young Frenchies has a lot on the ball and tends to bring more of a global sound to the fore as they push what's jazz and what's world into that middle ground where both pull the best from each other.

Snappy cats with smart resumes between them, this feels like that classic date that dips it's toes in other waters and let's you know those waters are warm enough for you to dip as well without any shocks. Fun set that works well throughout and is a tasty diversion.
